Writing a Letter of Recommendation

Canada's Seventh-day Adventist schools are full of outstanding individuals who are dedicated to making a difference in the lives of young people. So your letters must explain what makes your nominee exceptional. Don't just say your nominee is outstanding – prove it by using examples and stories to illustrate. Use the sample criteria listed below, providing specific examples for as many criteria as you can. Be sure to sign and date the letter.

The three letters (from the nominator and two recommenders) should provide examples from a range of views and perspectives and cannot be written by immediate family members of the nominee. For example, a principal might write a letter about outstanding academic performance. A student might talk about the impact the nominee had on his/her life. A pastor or parent could profile how the nominee links the school with the church and the community.

Sample Criteria:

- Spiritual Credibility: someone who lives in a way that demonstrates a personal relationship with Jesus Christ and who inspires students to develop their own spiritual lives.
- Concern for Students: someone who supports students in the learning process, encouraging them to overcome obstacles and aim high and who makes a profound and positive impact on children's intellectual, social and emotional development.
- Innovation in Teaching Methods and Strategies: someone who is creative and enthusiastic in communicating subject material, who thinks outside the box and advances new approaches to teaching and learning.
- Impact on School Improvement: someone who takes the lead in school improvement and is responsible for transforming/improving a school and/or its impact on the community.
- Involvement in Church and Community: someone who takes an active part in the local church and community and inspires students to be good citizens, encouraging them to think both locally and globally and teaching them the importance of strong values.
- Mentor to Others: someone who is an outstanding mentor to other educators and staff, who leads by example, builds on success, and inspires others to overcome challenges.
- Professional Growth: someone who values lifelong learning and who is regularly involved in professional development opportunities to strengthen his/her skills and effectiveness.

These are just a few of the ways that Adventist educators make a difference in the lives of students, families and communities across Canada. But they aren't the only ways. You might have your own reasons for nominating someone. Share your stories of how that special teacher or administrator made a positive impact on their school and its students.

Please attach your letter of recommendation to this form.
